Behavior Observation Critique

Critique the behavior observation exercise and submit to turnitin. You shouldn't need more than a page to do it. You may do this in your own way, but the following questions should be a useful guide to things to think about:

- What did we do right?

- What were the advantages gained by using formal sampling and recording methods?

- What were the drawbacks of using those methods?

- What were the problems you encountered, and how could they have been prevented, if at all?

- If they couldn't have been prevented, what would you do as a fieldworker encountering such problems in your own work?